Did you know?

Hospice Orillia operates from the Orillia Common Roof, a distinctive building designed to accommodate various human services under one roof. This innovative concept aims to offer clients a convenient, centralized location for services. Alongside our dedicated office space, we have the advantage of utilizing numerous meeting rooms and collaborating with other organizations within the building. If you've participated in a meeting here, you'll witness the genuine sense of community thriving within these walls!

The door you see in the Hospice Orillia logo represents the various doors our team visits to serve our community.

Support can be provided in our client's home or a private space within our office.

"Home" is defined as wherever the person resides, whether that be their own house or apartment, a long-term care facility or retirement home.

We meet our clients where they are at.

Mission

Hospice Orillia offers practical, emotional and spiritual support to those in our community coping with advanced illness, death and bereavement. Our volunteers and staff serve clients and their loved ones of all ages and backgrounds with compassion and respect, while honouring their choices and supporting them through their life journey.

Philosophy

We believe that death is a part of life, a rite of passage. There is much that can be done to help individuals and their families face this time with dignity and quality in their lives. Each person is unique and his or her distinctness will be respected within an atmosphere of confidentiality.

If you know of any upcoming local events or have a helpful link you would like to share, we would love to hear from you!

Understanding What You're Feeling

Anticipatory grief

Anticipatory grief refers to a feeling of grief occurring before an impending loss. Typically, the impending loss is the death of someone close due to illness. This can be experienced by dying individuals themselves and can also be felt due to non-death-related losses like a scheduled mastectomy, pending divorce, company downsizing, or war.

Hot Tips: Advance Care Planning for Caregivers

If you are a caregiver, discussing end-of-life decisions with the person in your care can be very difficult. You may need to initiate and encourage the conversation. To make the topic less overwhelming, try bringing it up in a comfortable, relaxed setting. Begin with a situation they can relate to like another loved one's end-of-life experience and remind them how this type of planning will reduce stress, anxiety and conflict between family members and loved ones. Don't be discouraged if you are initially met with resistance. Advance Care Planning requires many conversations and is an ongoing process.

Five Steps of Advance Care Planning

By planning early, you can ensure that you have a voice in your future medical decisions. To help you (or a loved one) work through the advance care process, here are five steps to follow:

- THINK about your beliefs, values and concerns. What brings you quality of life?
- LEARN about various end-of-life medical procedures and the care decisions you may be asked to make (e.g. life-prolonging measures).
- DECIDE who will be your Substitute Decision Maker(s). Who would you like to speak for you if you are unable to make decisions?
- TALK about your wishes with your Substitute Decision Maker, loved ones and health care providers.
- RECORD your wishes and ensure that your decision maker(s) understands your choices and has a copy of your plan. Write your decisions down in an Advance Care Directive or record or videotape them.
